

HELVETIC SUMMIT
— ADVISING —

Parent Information

Why Parents Work With Us

Youth hockey has become increasingly complex. Families are often expected to make high-stakes decisions long before they are necessary, while navigating pressure from agents, advisors, and external voices.

Helvetic Summit Advising exists to provide clarity, structure, and perspective so parents can support their child with confidence rather than stress.

What Parents Gain

- Clear understanding of hockey pathways and timelines
 - Confidence in decision-making without urgency or pressure
 - Support navigating agent interest responsibly
 - Reduced stress and outside noise
 - Alignment between player goals, family values, and development
-

Support Beyond the Ice

Our work goes beyond performance. We help families understand the emotional and mental demands of development, manage expectations, and maintain balance between hockey, education, and personal life.

Parents are supported as partners, not spectators.

An Independent Perspective

We work exclusively for the player and family. We are not agents, recruiters, or contract negotiators.

Our independence allows us to provide honest guidance focused solely on what is best for the player's long-term growth and well-being.

Our Commitment to Families

We commit to integrity, restraint, and transparency. We will never manufacture urgency, promise outcomes, or push professional decisions before a player is ready.

Our role is to protect development so families can focus on what truly matters.

Next Steps

Families interested in learning more are encouraged to book an introductory call. This conversation is designed to determine fit, answer questions, and provide initial clarity.

There is no obligation, only honest discussion.
